Program description: SHO is a state/local county partnership to educate local communities on the nature/location of underage drinking and then to implement SHOs at the county/city level to provide sanctions for adults who allow their property to be used for underage house parties. In the past 1½ years at least three New Mexico municipalities (Espanola, Moriarty, Santa Fe) have passed SHOs. Preliminary conversations have been held with two of these three municipalities to explore the possibility of conducting an evaluation of the effectiveness of SHOs in reducing underage drinking. These municipalities described challenges with enforcement of these SHOs, making outcome evaluation seem premature at this time.

The Local DWI Programs administered by the New Mexico Department of Finance and Administration (DFA) recently changed their requirements for prevention activities funded through the programs, to stipulate that all prevention activities must be “evidence-based or promising.” The previous guidelines required that 60 percent of prevention activities be evidence based. ### Additional Clarification

SEOW is a state-level interagency body that addresses underage drinking activities within its mission to support state and public agencies and communities in preventing substance abuse, dependency, and related problems by identifying, collecting, analyzing, and disseminating data describing prevalence, severity, consumption, and consequences of alcohol, tobacco, and drug use in New Mexico.

The Substance Abuse Prevention Policy Consortium is a second interagency body that has been convened in the past year by the state Office of Substance Abuse Prevention. This group is currently working to develop a 5-year strategic plan for substance abuse prevention that will include an underage drinking prevention plan as one component. The group’s participants are similar to the SEOW described above, except that participation: (1) is limited to state agencies, so excludes community-based coalitions (e.g., New Mexico Prevention Network; Prevention Advocates); and (2) includes some additional federal and state agency partners (e.g., National Guard; High Intensity Drug Trafficking Area; HSD Medicaid).

Description of funding streams and how they are used:

A portion (approximately 40 percent) of annual state alcohol excise tax revenue is allocated, by statute, to county-level local DWI prevention programs. These county programs allocate these funds, in turn, to treatment, prevention, law enforcement, compliance monitoring, and other activities, of which prevention is a substantial portion (roughly 20 percent of the total in FY2013). Of the funds allocated for prevention, roughly 60 percent is allocated for underage drinking prevention.

Additional Clarification

The estimates of state-funded underage drinking prevention activities reported above are likely an underestimate, since they do not include estimates for certain programs for which information was not received by the survey submission date.
